A WAITING FORTUNE

In the Mines and Manufacturing Opportunities of Crawford County, Missouri.

The St. Louis, Salem and Little Rock Railway—The Towns of Steeleville and Cuba.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.
STEELEVILLE, Mo., December 18, 1883.—The mineral wealth of the State of Missouri is almost beyond computation. It is true we can estimate how much coal, lead, zinc, iron, copper, etc., has been taken out in the past, but the vast bodies of mineral yet undisturbed, by the pick or shovel, or, perhaps, yet undiscovered, "must give us pause."

The numerous deposits of what is termed the low grade ore throughout the State, which the miners may now term a disadvantage and a drawback, may result in colossal fortunes, and really the most valuable products of the mine. The operator, capitalist and miner should, therefore, carefully note the localities where these mineral deposits exist, for at no very distant day the increase in demand will make them especially valuable.

The first steel rail made in the United States was at Galesburg in 1835. The cost of experiments and tools for that single rail was over $500,000 but the result is that Bessemer works have been established in different places and the American rail is far superior to foreign competitors.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS.

in any undertaking is patient and untiring perseverance, and the amount of labor and money spent in perfecting the American steel. This has been the productive of the most beneficial results to the country. While the mineral in its natural state, mixed as it is with other elements, may be considered a great source of wealth, the manufacturer which is in these products should rest contented to mine and ship crude ores, for in doing so they are only enriching the manufacturer and the manufacturer while they only have the benefit of one-third the actual value of their product.

The same may be said also regarding timber. The devastation of the Northern forests and the rapidly increasing expansive demand for walnut, oak, and other hard wood timbers are daily making the Southern forests of greater value.

What is West and South, however, what it will not do receive at no very distant day, is the attention of skilled labor and capital to the natural wealth of particular localities. There should be organizations formed upon an industrial basis among the operators of the East to seek out the fields of profitable industry in the West, and then boldly to meet the shock of the wagon wheels—go to the source of supplies, and begin, perhaps, in a small way, to manufacture the articles in which they are skilled, and, before the effort will be apparent, and while it may take years of labor to successfully compete for Eastern trade, against the long recognized and wealthy establishments, the Eastern trade may be secured at once. It is an important consideration that it is with these elements that the manufacturers in wood and iron to ship the crude material long distances, make and reship their goods west of the locality where such material is found, and then compete with those who with equal skill, although perhaps much less capital, plant their works where the iron is mined, where the timber is gathered and made, their manufactured article, before they are obliged to ship it, thus reducing in bulk and weight at least two-thirds, while advancing the value from 10 to 20 per cent.

EXTRAORDINARY INDUSTRIAL OPPORTUNITIES.

There are twenty million miles in the country, the greater portion being principally blue, red and yellow hematite. The Midland Blast Furnace turns out about fifty tons of pig iron daily. Lead is found in good quantities in the northern part of the State. Zinc is of good quality (ore porcelain ware) potter's clay and brick clay are found in abundance. Building stone, fine red granite, sandstone and sandstone could be extensively quarried.

Unimproved land sells at $1 to $10 per acre; farms $10 to $15 per acre. A good deal of agricultural land is yet undeveloped, but so far as houses or factories may dot these hills, and a prosperous and progressive future succeed the present era of comparative inactivity.

H. AND S.

eight miles from Cuba, which is in turn thirty miles from St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad.

Cuba has also about 500 population, and is a great market. To the south it drops from the timber and iron region and to the north from an agricultural region, where Germans have settled, good sturdy farmers, descendants of founders of building and denominations; a frame school building with good school, employing three teachers, who instruct 125 pupils. There are two civil engineers, a half dozen 600, several blacksmiths and blacksmiths, which sustain good stocks, indicating a prosperous trade. The commercial business of this town is limited, but there will be improvement noticeable, but not enough—are two hotels, no bank, nor newspaper, two wagon shops producing fifty or sixty wagons a year. The Cuba Flouring Mill has a capacity of 100 barrels a day, and thirty barrels daily capacity, doing a merchant and custom business and operating a planing mill. About 300 to 400 cars of wheat were shipped last year, and in the neighborhood of 100 cars of stock.

NEED MORE MANUFACTURING.

Both of these towns need and could easily support more manufacturing, especially a foundry and iron works. Pottery would well do, a tannery would pay, hogsheads for vegetables would make money, brick and patent lime kiln, a foundry or cooper shop, a furniture factory, wagons, buggies, implements, etc., might all be manufactured here. The manufacturers need a granite works for their red granite.

Every requisite for the successful stock raising exists in Crawford County, the grasses are abundant, the soil is profuse and the pure and much of the sand especially suitable for range. The climate is salubrious and the market close. There is a lack of improvement in interest, but the time will come when the future will improve. Horses are receiving better attention than cattle or sheep, and are exported in considerable quantities; there is also some shipment of cattle, and a good market for cattle.

ALLIGATOR SLIPPERS IN ALL SHAPES AT SWOPE'S.

The grandest display of gents' embroidered slippers ever seen in this city at Swope & Bro.'s workmen John F. Gordis, foreman; John F. Kellar, overseer; George G. Bradford, recorder; John Becker, Jr., receiver; Henry F. Webster, auditor; George H. Green, bookkeeper; George C. Kohl, house watchman; Conrad Bernhard, outside watchman; Herman L. Schmid, trustee; Dr. J. W. Starkloff and Beno Brinbach, medical examiners.

In the Westminster Presbyterian Church there will be a service on Sunday evening by the pastor on Gaithersburg 1/4-6. In addition to appropriate hymns by the congregation the following will be sung: "Jesus Christ is Risen Today"; "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah"; "Jesus Christ is Risen Today"; "Hallelujah Chorus"; "Glory to God in the Highest"; "Gloria"; "Twelfth Mass, Mozart"; "Now, We Thank You, Lord"; "Jesus Christ is Risen Today"; "Hallelujah Chorus".

W. C. McDonald has just returned from the West.

Mrs. John J. Brainard, of the Mary Institute, leaves this evening with her wife for Chicago, where she will celebrate the anniversary of her silver wedding.

Chas. W. Weed, with the Culver Commission Co., leaves this evening with his wife for Chicago, where he will celebrate the anniversary of his silver wedding.

The Misses Amy Hanlon and Maude McKittrick of Troy, Ill., will spend Christmas with the Misses Sallie and Nannie Kilpatrick of Wash.

WHAT business has Governor CRITTENDEN interfering with the course of the law in behalf of FRANK JAMES? Is he afraid that Mr. JAMES will not have a fair trial? Or is he not rather afraid that he will have a fair trial?

THE latest advertisement of MARY ANDERSON announces that she is to marry the Duke of PORTLAND. This is an improvement on anything in reach of the astute managers in this country, and the best part of it is that it does not cost MARY a cent.

RECENTLY an aged convict in a Westphalia Prison, sentenced before the march of modern improvement began, was taken to the railway station at Werden that he might see a locomotive and train for the first time in his life. Here is a theme for some new BYRON.

DR. LUTZ is trying to realize the Irishman’s definition of a bird by being in two places at once. When it comes to putting a motion, Dr. LUTZ proposes to act as President of the Board; when it comes to voting on the motion, Dr. LUTZ shrinks back to his original dimensions of a simple Commencement.

YESTERDAY’s meeting in the interest of the Democratic National Convention was a satisfactory beginning, and there is every reason to hope that the convention will come to St. Louis. One drawback against which Cincinnati labor in vain is the superabundance of local statesmanship in that unsavory city. At the last convention the delegates were exposed to influences which made them particularly anxious not to try Cincinnati again.

THE two Presidents who died by the hand of the assassin were both nominated at Chicago, and every man nominated for President at Chicago so far has been either beaten at the polls or removed by assassination after his election. Courting illusioneers, the Republicans have placed their National Committee under the command of a millionaire speculator in the slave labor of convicts and called their convention to meet again among the slaughter pens in the home of GUITTEAU.

OUR special correspondent, “H. and S.,” pay their respects to-day to the resources of Crawford County. There is enough wealth beneath the soil of Missouri to pay off the National debt and have enough left to pay off the State debt, abolish all taxes, educate every child in the State, and give every citizen enough to live on, but it is undeveloped, partly for want of capital, but chiefly because the world does not know the truth. The great need of Missouri is to make known her resources through such letters as the one we publish to-day.

THE editor of the Spectator this morning says that it has always been a matter of wonderment to him “why the women of the Jewish faith have so generally in literature and the drama been endowed with heroic qualities, while the men of their race were represented only as mean and servile creatures.” This would indicate that the editor of the Spectator had confined himself exclusively to English literature and drama. The moment one thinks of German literature, the names of Lessing’s “Nathaniel Wolfe,” and of Gutkun’s “Uriel Acosta” rise up in the nobility of character in representative Jewish men.

ALL of a sudden President ARTHUR has been reminded by Congressman HOBBLITZELLE that the 23d of December is a day for patriotic observance and he calls on all good citizens to give proper thanks for the circumstance that on that day, one hundred years ago, WASHINGTON resigned his command of the Army. There is no possible objection to any citizen indulging in as much patriotism as his heart will prompt or his purse will allow. But this thing of springing a new holiday on a nation on twenty-four hours’ notice appears to be a departure from the practice of the aforesaid WASHINGTON.

FOR the past four years the Government Engineers have been working on the bar at Galveston, and the slow rate of progress has not suited the fiery interests of the ambitious Galvestonians. Several months ago they called on JAMES B. EADS to give them his views on the situation, and he has written that he will give them twenty feet of water over the bar in two years, and will secure an ultimate depth of thirty feet in the channel and maintain it for twenty years for the sum of $7,000,000. The success of Captain EADS with the jetties at the mouth of the Mississippi River sets at rest the question of his ability to fulfill his promise at Galveston, and if the Government wants to secure this great Southern harbor it could not do better than strike a bargain with him.

FRANK IN DANGER.

GOV. CRITTENDEN is in a fever of excitement about the new danger which threatens FRANK JAMES, and he is appealing to Senator VEST by mail and telegraph to use his influence with his fishing chum, President ARTHUR, to have the United States capias for FRANK withdrawn.

ONCE in the custody of the United States, FRANK is sure to be tried in some cold, un-sympathetic jurisdiction outside of Missouri, and where he cannot have the Governor of the State as a witness for him and an exiled associate of the Supreme Court Judges detailed to defend him. A trial without such aids means certain conviction, and after he is convicted in Alabama of robbing a United States paymaster, the United States may take a notion to surrender him to Minnesota for trial on the more serious charge of robbery and murder.

IT is to save FRANK from this that the Governor wants to hold him as a sort of paroled prisoner under the protection of the court in behalf of the prisoner, and distinguished friends and political counsels of the Governor appear on the witness stand to proclaim their affection for the accused and to insult and bully the Prosecuting Attorney.

WE have great regard for State rights, but with reference to FRANK JAMES, Minnesota has some rights as well as Missouri. If there are to be any more travesties of law and justice on his account, we would rather have them occur in Minnesota. VEST’s influence at Washington may fall to meet the Governor’s loud demand on it, and in that case CRITTENDEN may have the James Boy influence solid against VEST in the next Senatorial fight. But President ARTHUR need not be on that account afraid that he will injure his friend by refusing to aid in carrying out Gov. CRITTENDEN’s political engagements.

THE Louisiana lottery has become such a scandalously bold, active and aggressive power in politics that it threatens to split the Democratic party of that State into two places at once. When it comes to putting a motion, Dr. LUTZ proposes to act as President of the Board; when it comes to voting on the motion, Dr. LUTZ shrinks back to his original dimensions of a simple Commencement.

When it comes to putting a motion, Dr. LUTZ proposes to act as President of the Board; when it comes to voting on the motion, Dr. LUTZ shrinks back to his original dimensions of a simple Commencement.

THE Louisiana lottery has become such a scandalously bold, active and aggressive power in politics that it threatens to split the Democratic party of that State into two places at once. When it comes to putting a motion, Dr. LUTZ proposes to act as President of the Board; when it comes to voting on the motion, Dr. LUTZ shrinks back to his original dimensions of a simple Commencement.

A NATURAL APPOINTMENT

Which Has an Law for It, and Is Taken Out of the Lawyer's Hands.

This morning when the Criminal Court met Circuit Attorney Harvey presented a motion to the court to appoint a janitor. He stated in the motion that the officers of the court had unit ed in asking the Mayor to reappoint Stephen Howard, a reliable, sober man, whose past services had recommended him to every officer of that court. The request was a trivial one, but was disregarded by the Mayor, who is a political man for rewarding the colored wing of the Republican party it interests are. Mr. Harvey stated that in this connection the City Council had shown the impatience of having a man appointed with whom the officers could compose confidence. The officers were unanimous in their judgment which it was the greatest importance to have taken care of by a caretaker instead of a janitor, and the appointment was usually extended to the officers of a court was withheld by the Mayor, and to the neglect of a responsible man, who was not a political man entered. Mr. Harvey then read the statutes on the subject in support of a motion to have the court consider the matter under advisement. Wagoner to take the matter under advisement. The judge refused to do not desire to clash with the Mayor, or to interfere with his appointments or any other feature of his duties, but he was familiar with the law and knew that the law did not require that there was no necessity of taking the matter under advisement. Since he had done his duty he would be reliable custodian of that humble position perfectly reliable and recommended by Judge Langlum as honest and reliable and he would, therefore, appoint him janitor.

AN EARLY BLAZE

Partial Burning This Morning of a Gasoline Stove Factory.

At 2 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in the rear portion of Nos. 224 and 226 South Third street, on premises of the Queen Metal Stove Company, a factory for the manufacture of gasoline stoves. The main portion of the building, which is upon the northeast corner of Spruce street, is two stories high, and is separated from the rear portion, which is three stories high, by a thick wall and iron doors. The rear portion is a single story building, which was until recently used as a smokehouse for the curing of hams. The fire of this morning, however, originated in the old smoke house, which is naturally but a shell. The east half of this smoke house was burned from the outside, the roof being entirely scorched and singed. The fire doubtless originated with the factory boilers, which alone occupied the rear portion. The insurance company estimate their loss at about $1,500, and it cannot exceed that figure, the chief item being a large quantity of dried ham, which was on the legs, which were scorched. No one occupied the building at night, and to-day the regular workmen were at the factory. The Queen Metal Stove Company was fully insured in city agencies. George Kahlis is president and C. A. Stroh is manager. The factory has a value which has a plant valued at $6,000. The damaged building is owned by J. T. Whitelaw. The loss will fall considerably under $1,000.

GLORIA IN EXCELSIS.

The Christmas Carol Now Sounding on Every Hand.

How the Churches Will Commemorate the Birth of the Savior.

Altars to Be Illuminated—Floral Decorations
—Christmas Sermons — Denominational Appointments.

On Christmas Day at St. Xavier's College Church, there will be two solemn high masses. The first will be at 4 o'clock a.m. This will be followed by a succession of low masses until 10 o'clock. At 10:30 a.m. the second solemn high mass will be celebrated, at which there will be a full orchestra accompanying the organ under the direction of Professor Gelsin. The altars are to be decorated with green hot-house plants and evergreens, and the columns in the sanctuary will be entwined with evergreens. The altars will be illuminated with gas jets, and upwards of a hundred candles will be interspersed between the lilies and roses of the altar. Over the altar will flame the words, in gas jets, "Gloria in excelsis Deo."

The acolytes will be robed in new cassocks and surplices recently purchased, and will be under the direction of Mr. Hoefer, S.J. There will be a solemn benediction of the Mass. Blessed Sacrament at 8 o'clock.

At St. Joseph's Church, corner of Eleventh and Biddle streets, the order of services will be much the same as at St. Xavier's, with the exception of the first low mass, which will be said at 5 o'clock. Instead of 4 as at St. Xavier's. The sanctuary will be decorated in the most festive manner, and the altars will be illuminated with gas jets and upwards of a thousand candles and gas-jets. The Rev. Father Connely, S.J., will preach a sermon at the 10 o'clock high mass. In the afternoon at 2:30 there will be solemn repose and a general evening service. At 7:30 there will be solemn devotion to the infant Jesus, and benediction. These devotional services will be held every evening for eight days. On Christmas Day a large crib will be erected on one of the side altars, which will be adorned in a tasty and unique manner.

Rev. Dr. Foy will arrive from Rome, will be welcomed by the Texas Society, and will speak at the Pickwick Hall on Sunday morning. The Christmas exercises at the Pickwick Hall will consist of recitations, distribution of gifts, vocal and instrumental recreations, etc.

Mr. J. M. Brattie, superintendent of Central High School (High-school, Pickwick), has been added to the committee of seventeen prominent laymen who are charged with the duty of keeping up an interesting program for the school year.

At the First Christian Church, the Rev. Wm. E. Hall will preach Sunday morning at Seventeenth and Olive streets. In the evening he will deliver a sermon on the subject of "The Wonders of Creation." On last Wednesday evening Mr. Hall immersed five persons at his church who have received baptismal religion, and the same day a large crowd gathered to witness the baptism of these young converts will be received into the church.

Last evening the young ladies of this church held their annual carol service, conducted by the different priests attached to the church until 10 o'clock, when the second solemn high mass will be celebrated, for which the choir will sing antiphonal psalmody under the direction of Hon. Bruce Jones, the superintendent of the school.

The ladies' society will resume their usual Wednesday evening service, which were interrupted by the fire and the rearrangement of the building, on next Wednesday, at the church. The gentlemen are all expected to attend.

A reunion service of the four Christian churches is to be held at the First Church at an early date.

Rev. Dr. Schofield will preach a Christmas service at the Fourth Baptist Church tomorrow evening. The organ will be played by Mr. Williams, and the choir will render appropriate music.

The First Congregational Church will present special religious services in their chapel on Sunday evening, at 7:30 p.m. The organ will be played by Mr. Williams, and the choir will render appropriate music.

THE WILD WESTERN GIRL.

The touches my cheek, and I quiver—
She sighs—like an overcharged river.
My heart rushes on through my veins,
She sighs again, in silent emotion,
As a she-tiger fondles her own,
I clasp her with fierceness and passion,
And kiss her wild shudder and shun—
(Eliza Wheeler.)

She smiled when I mentioned the oysters,
And grinned at the sight of a stew,
Very much as a frolicking boy stirs
With his hand a potful of beans,
I gazed with enchantment and wonder
Over her beautiful Grecian hair,
And said, "How many thunder
On this wild whirling maiden so fair!"

But when she was called to repetition,
With stews and hot coffee and tries,
The old oysters had reached a completion,
In a dish of beans, and the beans were
Behold, she arose from the table,
And accepted the arm of another,
And left to go home.
She had gone with her strapping big brother.

"SNOOPER."

Fred C. Valentines in Swinton's Story Teller.

It was a most extraordinary engagement—in fact, incomprehensible. Just imagine, Bella Remesa (her maiden name was Isabel), but because she was a beauty, and because of her hazel eyes, golden-haired fair, was engaged to be married to Dr. Reginald Bander.

But this fact alone was neither incomprehensible nor extraordinary for he was wealthy as she; he was handsomer than a man as she was a pretty and refined woman; no, the bare feature in the case was, that the relatives of both high contracting parties were not only satisfied, but evidently pleased with the match.

Imagine, fair reader—and unfair ones too—what would you think if your mother-in-law were really in love with the miserable joys or joyous miseries of course? Then feel as if they had been married for years, because their good-by kisses were not stolen, but given in the presence of all.

The wedding was to take place Christmas eve, and grand preparations were being made for it was to be the affair of the season.

One evening in October the Doctor, after pulling his bride's youngest sister's ears to his heart's content, suggested a late oyster supper, and for the reason which we will not go into, to expand, carried home an oyster shell from the repast.

The following morning he found it in his pocket, and while resting from his professional labors, and busily engaged in scrubbing it. "But few of us know how important an oyster shell is," said he.

"As beautiful as Belle?" asked his friend and former classmate, Mr. Codine, who, while visiting Bander's operating chair read the latest medical journal.

"No," said Dr. Bander, as he continued to admire the shell.

"Not as frequent?" again said his friend, in a teasing tone.

"Which?" asked Dr. Bander, ambiguously.

Codine continued his reading as Bander mechanically polished his shell. Suddenly an idea presented itself to him which seemed amusing, for he smiled as he glued a ribbon to the back of the shell, and upon its face he pasted a small piece of orange, ornamented its edges with a narrow rim of gold, and then hung it on the wall of his office, among the paintings and articles of bric-a-brac, most of which had been collected on his travels. When he had finished this little ornament to his first rose, looked at it, and said:

"Boy, what is a snooper?"

Dr. Bander, without changing a feature or manifesting the least annoyance in his tone, answered:

"An apparatus designed to make blanned fools as questions."

For a moment they both laughed, yet neither would have been able to explain their amusement, except, perhaps, by the antithesis it presented to the usual serious character of their employment.

The Remesas were soon forgotten in the discussion of a new operation which a surgical celebrity was just then introducing, when Miss Belle entered with a message from her mother, and when Dr. Bander, who had no time to dine with her that evening,

The doctor kissed his bride, whereupon his friend, with a farcical gravity, felt his pulse, and then said:

"Reptor pro re nata; $5 is my fee," and affecting a pompous stride took his hat and overcoat and went home.

When Remesa had proceeded to write Miss Belle, "with some art," which, as a bride, was a pleasure to both, and which, as a wife, she might consider quite a task, and he an insufferable bore. Said the way of a man of professional men, "I am sure you will have time to dine with her that evening."

The doctor kissed his bride, whereupon his friend, with a farcical gravity, felt his pulse, and then said:

"Reptor pro re nata; $5 is my fee," and affecting a pompous stride took his hat and overcoat and went home.

She did not laugh, but quietly laying down the duster, before he could understand her actions, she had left his office, and a moment later was seen in the room, with her interrogator who, Dr. Codine approached with a polite salutation.

"Doctor, I am glad to see you," said Mr. Codine, "and should like to talk to you for a few moments." Visions of a consultation from the rich Mr. Remesa crossed the doctor's mind as he thought what to say.

"You are a snooper," and for some reason they embraced, not like Spaniards, but really hugged each other. Codine found his breath and said:

"Christina! And you will be my best man. And Christina! It was. We had the same reason for the embrace, but Codine, after an hour's conversation, parted, both apparently in high glee.

It was near midnight when Dr. Bander returned home, and there found Codine, who greeted him with:

"Bander, do you know what you are?"

"A very ordinary mortal in your eyes, I presume."

"No, you are a snooper," and for some reason they embraced, not like Spaniards, but really hugged each other. Codine found his breath and said:

"Christina! And you will be my best man. And Christina! It was. We had the same reason for the embrace, but Codine, after an hour's conversation, parted, both apparently in high glee.

The entrance of patients for awhile gave his thoughts other direction, but his office hours were hardly over when he determined to go to his sister's room, and lay away the afternoon, or if he should find time to work, to write and work profitably.

The elegant little dust broom which Belle had given her future husband was whisking off the particles which had settled upon his books and ornaments as fast as he could to him.

Silently she stopped, touched the oyster-shell upon the wall, and read the word "Snooper," dear," he answered, "is an apparatus designed to make fools ask questions."
